I’m always concerned about people’s past. It isn’t just my words. I’d like to learn not to do the things I’ve done in the past.

I’d like to share what I’ve learned so far in my life. I believe that everyone, or at least the majority of people, in this generation has a past.

Insulting, hurting, and gossiping about someone's past is completely absurd. People may have had a number of relationships in the past. It could have destroyed their lives. Simultaneously, one should be aware of whether they have a large number of left relationships or a large number of relationship with people at the same time.

Let me present you with an option. There are two of them. One has a history of relationships, while the other has only been in one relationship. Let's call the first one X and the second one Y.
As I previously stated, Mr. X has many previous relationships that he left and relationships that left him. But he never had feelings for multiple people with the same time. He was always true and honest during that difficult time in his life.
Everyone knows that the next Mr.Y is in a relationship with one, but he has so many affairs in that same relationship with others. In the end, however, he is completely committed to his relationship and flawless in every way.

Who would you pick as a partner if you had to choose a guy? Mr. X or Mr. Y, please!
I would choose Mr. X only because he is true to me for a short time or for the rest of my life, but I can't share my feelings for someone I truly adore with others. We could say that our love was able to change Mr.Y, and he is now successful in life. But, Mr. X, it hasn't been confirmed! Mr. X is a perfect match for the question of who could be loyal in a relationship. Anything else may think Mr.Y is perfect, but only Mr.X is capable of true love.

Aside from that, no one has the right to criticize someone's history. It's ridiculous to insult, hurt, and gossip about their past. People may tease and mock, but it should not cause heartbreak and also not cross their limits. Nobody is perfect here. Don't try to impose difficult words on others because of their past. It could be a romantic or marriage relationship. If they truly have their own opinion, which we cannot understand or accept, it is their wish. It does not imply that it is incorrect. Only they understand what they desire and what they are going through. Be supportive rather than critical.
If you don't understand the relationship or the separation, ask for clarification. If you truly want to know the truth, never imagine a story from your perspective. It's their story, their life. Try to understand from their perspective, or else accept them as they are.

Finnally, Never pass judgement on anyone's relationship. Every coin has two sides, and every story is divided into two parts. Be a part of any side, right or wrong, but don't create a third side and stand in it in other people's relationships.
